Classroom environments and technology needs are changing, but brands like FileWave and Lenovo are here to ensure student needs are continually met. With innovative devices and device management solutions, your students and staff will be connected, secure and on the leading edge of technology—even when not in the classroom.

These solutions are available as a bundled package and can be purchased through the use of CARES Act funding to further enable students in a remote environment.

FileWave Solutions

FileWave combats a lack of technology resources and a need for more devices across K12 environments. They understand consistent need to deploy updates and new applications combined with limited resources makes this environment unique. FileWave's K-12 Endpoint Management solution automates the process, extends your IT department's capabilities and brings classroom management into the digital age. With a streamlined system, your IT team can manage all devices from one console and easily add it to new acquisitions as those are made.

Lenovo's goal is to provide smarter technology for all and their diverse line of computers and tablets does just that. With state of the art devices, they easily enable students and educators for success in and out of the classroom.
